from devoteer. When the latter found out the true state of affairs they attempting to lynch their deceivers.

The story of the vision exhibts in bold relief the craduous character of the Italian populace.

A peasant girl, Bettina Baldassarri, 10 years old, while seeking a trayed lamb on the evening of April 16 last reported that she had seen on a rock the Virgin Mary dressed in white, in a halo of light. The next morning Bettina and other girls saw the Virgin again in the eame spot.

A girl of 17, Maria Florelli, said she was commissioned by the Virgin to bless the pilgrims, who daily in-creased in numbers, so that at one time there were bundreds on the mountain, kneeling, praying, and asking pardon for their sites. An old cripple recovered the use of her limbs and an old blind man asserted that he was able to see. Lately another girl, Rosa Rossi, an-nounced that the Virgin desired a church to be erectan on the spot of her a: pirition, whereupon a collection of funds was made among the pilgrims.

CROSSED THE OCEAN IN BOILER. After journeying nearly 12 000 miles in an endeavor to reach the United States an endeavor to reach the United Sates and enduring great bardships, Bozo Gacina, a Dalmattan boy 16 years old, who was detained because he was a stowaway on the attamenting Umbria, was released in New York yesterday and placed in the care of friends. Gatalant for weat lived in the buller of a cina for a week lived in the boiler of a small engine on the Umbria. He came to the United States once on the Sax-onia, but no one could be found at onls, but no one could be found at Eills Island to speak the boy's dialect, and he was deported. At Liverpool he boarded the Umbria on Friday, June 13, and descended into the boiler, room. The manhole on top of the boiler which furnishes steam to the "donkey" engine, used for dist lling sea water, was open. The boy, unable to find any other hiding place, crawled in and lay on top of the tubes. Luckily the boiler was not used during the voyage or the boy would have met a horrible death. Until the next Thursday the young stowaway lived in the boiler, eating food given to him by triendly stokers, who did not betray his secret. Thurs-day, however, an engineer was startled to see a head bob out of the opening in the top of the boiler and then disappear again. The engineer attempted to reach inside and grab the boy, but was severely bitten. Two stokers were settinto the boiler for what was supposed to be a lunatic and brought out the boy. No one on the ship under-stood what he said. At Ellis Island Inspector George E. Schubert, after trying to talk in half a dozen other languages to the youngster, found he was a Dalmation from the same town in which Schubert was born. He found the lad's friends in New York and they

INDIAN PRINCE IN LONDON .- Among the hundreds of distinguished persons who are in London from every part of the globe to see the crowning of the King and Queen, none is more picturesque than the Maharsjah of Kolbapur. This young prince is the ruler of one of the most prooperous independent native states in India. He is still under thirty, lives in magnificent Oriental style and dresses in opulent eastern

D smonds, pearls and rubies adorn his D amonds, pearls and rubles adorn his handsome person in great profusion. The Maharsjah is tall and athletic.
Riding, driving, shooting, hunting, polo and falcoury are among his favorit; pastimes; but, in fact, there is no sport in which he does not take an active and a leading part. Some of his riding seats are remarkable; notably one in 1895, when he covered the 110 miles which when he covered the 110 miles which separate Kolhapur from Mahableshwar (he summer seat of the Bombay gov-ernment) in nine hours, including stoppages.

This gallant Indian prince is a traveler and speaks English fluently. There are bundreds of Indian troops here and enormous suit s brought by other Indian princes. These princes live in that insolent Oriental way that they erjoy at home, but they sad-iy miss the ladian skies and warmth. The eternal rains of London distres them greatly.

The Hindus themselves kill all the cattle, sheep and chickens which they eat. Nothing in the way of meats is eat. Nothing in the way of meats is bought prepared for the table. A Hindu is not supposed to destroy any animal life except for food. They perform a certain religious ceremony at the killing of their beef cattle, and the touch of any other person would, in their opinion, defile the meat. Hence the butchering is done in a weird, mysterious manner that has no end of charm for the London urchin.
